Objectif principal	The first objective of this module is to compile an overview of the situation of the work-retirement transition. How is this transition made or how is it planned? The second objective pursued is the analysis of factors that may influence or have influenced this transition from work to retirement, as well as the determination of the factors that may postpone or that have postponed leaving the job market. These factors may be of different types: the general working conditions (planning of work schedules, better health conditions); other factors directly related to the job (training and obsolescence of skills); financial factors (financial incentives to stay in their job); personal factors (health, family reasons).
